From Mass Consciousness to Sovereign Consciousnesses

I Am Isis, Your Divine Voice. I come this time to answer a question asked by my channeler about what position she should take regarding the deep social differences that are being experienced in her country and all around the world.

First of all, we should say that there is no need for a position in dual terms, this is, having to be in favor or against something. However your human consciousness may still feel, sometimes inevitably, rejection or approval for certain circumstances, such as towards the extreme imbalances within humanity on Earth right now. It is indeed true that each individual is the creator of his or her own life, but the lack of self awareness has kept the largest number of humans on this planet virtually trapped within the same cycles for a long time, since they do not remember they can step out of them.

As you may know, the need to be saved has been one of the seven seals of consciousness. Now that you have released and transmuted such seal, now that you are aware that neither you nor anyone else needs to be saved, the terms of your relationships with others change. And then you traverse through a period of indifference where you focus on yourselves and your relationship with all of you before you can even look on to others.

However, as you become the Master of your own experience and come to terms with You, then you can choose to serve others while you are still in human form or later on, as many Ascended Masters do, as entities assisting from the other side of the veil the shift of consciousness that Earth as a whole is undergoing.

And what is this service that I am talking about? You, as Masters, have mostly succeeded in detaching from mass consciousness, which in a way was the product of the mental era you created or allowed others to create. Therefore, a part of mass consciousness is yours. As you learn to take responsibility for your creations, you also realize that you can do with those creations whatever you want, and mainly, you transmute those creations and allow them to evolve.

And what I mean by taking responsibility has nothing to do with trying to solve the perceived consequences of a creation as if they were problems. Doing that just sustains such reality because you continue to hold it present in your consciousness. What I mean is that by owning the part that is yours, then you can release it because, as a sovereign being, you can only transmute what is yours. And when you unchoose a creation, whatever it is, because it is no longer appropriate for you, then its energies are released to their evolution.

So mass consciousness, with all of its overlays and belief systems, partly belongs to you too, but as you detach from it and become sovereign, you are not only setting yourselves free from it but you are also cracking that stuck energy shell that surrounds the Earth. And so, you are able to look onto others with the compassion you have for yourselves, knowing in your hearts that they can break free also, sometime whenever they are reached by the waves of consciousness that naturally emanate from you. And that is indeed a huge collateral service, which you provide as a Master! Actually, you do not need to act as if you knew what is good for others, for that is a lie, so much as you do not need anyone to tell you what s good for you. However, a great deal of the human experience has derived from interaction. As a sovereign conscious human walking on Earth, who is not going by trying to steal energy from others and not allowing to be fed upon; and also by radiating compassion just because you are compassion, you do affect others. There is no need for preaching or imposing your knowledge on others because you LIVE in the totality of who you are. You understand the game of paradoxes you have playing and are aware that all is well.

And the Christ or crystalline energies that are now spreading across this planet help to magnify such consciousness and provide a whole new field of co-creation among humans.

Therefore, by committing to yourself and by daring to create your reality in honor of your true heart desires, you are also having a tremendous effect on the transmutation of mass consciousness and that will eventually allow each individual, as their own awareness grows, to tap into it and they will begin to realize that they are so much more than what they currently think they are, just like it happened to you. This is already occurring and that, Dear Ones, is a change of unprecedented proportions.

It has been said that humans created love, and as mass consciousness dissolves and this Earth becomes the home of more and more sovereign beings, humans can be able to take this amazing creation into unknown ways of assistance and collaboration. This is no longer a distant dream but a very tangible potential that is starting to manifest. For a while, humanity will need to clean up the house, your home, in order to release what is not appropriate and to prepare the space to express who you are and reach all new sorts of agreements.

So whenever you like or dislike something in your reality, you can if you so choose, claim the part of it that is yours and allow its transformation in your sovereign universe so that such energies can come back to serve you.

So far, you have been and continue to be part of humanity, and you will feel what is causing it pain. We can genuinely say that as you become more and more aware of your sovereignty and sit in the throne of your own kingdom, you are doing more for the impoverished than you could possibly imagine.

There are so many arenas of human expertise and creation that there will be those who will create the physical means for these transformations to take place, and you are helping to ground the consciousness that will give rise and support those creations. You are already doing it!

I sign off by reminding you that you are deeply loved and honored for who you are, my brave ones.

I Am Isis