

Memories

I Am Isis, Your Divine Voice, now coming as the Mother.

You all may have had the chance to watch children play, or you may even remember when you used to play as a child. Can you recall what you felt? Children agree on the story they will play out, create the imaginary set-up and then just perform it. How wise they are! That's exactly how you do it!

But then come those who have forgotten that they are playing a role as adults in the grander game, wearing their masks, to tell those children to come back to reality, a reality that has just been another game, very similar to the one they have just aborted.

Curiously, the expansion of consciousness does not make you more godlike (as you have imagined it in the past: serious, powerful, almighty), rather, it makes you more human. And also, it does not make you more grown-up, centered, and all-knowing, but it brings out the child in you, who trusts he/she is playing in safe grounds. You become more innocent and open, given that innocence is not ignorance: you know it all, and since it does not matter, you can fully trust.

There is effervescence in all areas of human activity resulting from all the energies that are being infused to the Earth. Even those who may appear less conscious are aware that something is thoroughly changing, so there is no need to actually worry for what will come in the future.

I invite you this time to be as children in the Now moment, with the awareness and the knowingness of the Human who knows who he/she is.

Knowledge and imagination are colliding, just as when the adult tells the child to come back to reality. As I have said before, the attributes of your divine nature have always been present, but disregarded in your human experience. So it is time to recognize that your imagination is a divine sense that can be very useful for you to deal with the infusion, transmutation and release of energies that are intensely taking place on Earth right now.

If you observe what you are feeling, not only emotionally or mentally, but in your body, you will have a hint of what is happening at large as well. As much as you may be experiencing aches and pains in your body, so is Earth too. The current impulse is to heal yourselves by exerting mental will on solving what appears to be wrong. But stop for a moment, take a deep breath and call for your imagination.

Open it up. Be a child who is able to see a castle in an assembly of trees, a horse in a broom or a magnificent vessel in a skateboard. Why? Because imagination is the prime source of creation.

The point is that there are huge amounts of energy available on Earth right now. If you settle in what you think you know, no matter what it is about, energies come in to strongly magnify such perception or experience. But if you activate your imagination power, those same energies will come in to magnify that too.

Matter is now adapting to the huge changes that have occurred in consciousness. In fact, the consciousness of matter itself has changed and that is beginning to manifest. You cannot see how molecules in a piece of metal are rearranging themselves, but you can feel it in the matter that composes your physical body.

So use your imagination to perceive what is really going on. And you may start to realize that things appear to be moving in a direction opposite to which you might have THOUGHT of. That is why you are becoming more human and more like children. Things are truly upside down, and this is great news if you are aware of that, and also that everything is expanding in all directions. It is easy to infuse new energy into any situation or experience if you allow it to expand enough as to make space for new energy.

However, we can see that one major hindrance for imagination are memories. We are not talking here about deeply ingrained belief systems, but of shadows of the past; both from the past in this lifetime, of past lifetimes, and of the history of humanity. None of them is yours anymore, but they are still present, mainly in your cellular memory, and in matter.

You can trust that you have transmuted and integrated back into you most of the aspects and belief systems that sometime created the experiences that you remember, but this has happened in your consciousness and that is now directly affecting matter.

Therefore, it is not that you haven't achieved your Enlightenment, it is that you are experiencing the release in the physical of those memories. For each of your individual lives, it is critical that you are constantly aware of this, because the intensity of the energies, if you linger too much on those memories, will magnify them and make them appear very real.

So you can use your imagination to become aware of this reverse mode that I am speaking of. Imagine a sock that is being turned inside out but also in every other direction. It is chaotic but very powerful.

So let's take a deep breath together again to align yourselves with your imagination, and open it up to all of your senses, both physical and divine. Oh yes, at first all the memories will rush in and try to replicate. But keep on breathing, ease your mind and your body and connect again to imagination.

Don't fall in the temptation of trying to make your past history better. There is no need for that because you will keep yourselves contained within the same bubbles of experience. Keep on breathing and go a bit further. Perceive and then sustain the awareness of how with every physical discomfort (and this includes thoughts and emotions, not only your body) that you feel, you are actually releasing and transmuting memories. So be aware and breathe into them. Your imagination will allow you to see such broader landscapes. As you hold each of such discomforts in a neutral safe space of compassion and no judgment, you allow one more step of transmutation.

These memories may bring a strong sense of frustration for what you think you have not achieved or given yourselves. Don't fight the frustration, be with it for a moment and a couple of breaths and refocus your attention onto something else. After a couple of hits, it will start to change. If they are very strong and compelling, take a moment to allow your imagination to bring you the other potentials of what could have also occurred (which actually did occur in other dimensions). Allow the experience to integrate its potentials and then let go of it. And again, I can't insist enough on your focusing in a creative endeavor of any nature, for that will allow the intense energies to go through you. And as you continue to reconnect with imagination, you will start to recognize whole new ways to make of the outcome of an apparently regular and repetitive situation a whole new experience, because although the physical reality that surrounds you appears to be the same, it is not so at all!

Allow your imagination to train your senses to feel the differences. And what will you be doing, my dear children? You are setting up a whole new game, new characterizations and experiences that will surely end up manifesting in your 3D experience.

So what will you like to focus upon? In this reverse mode I am inviting you to perceive, if you are eating more is because you are releasing your need to eat; if you are drinking more, it is because you are releasing your "dependence" on it, and so on. They are posing you with the usual need to fight them and correct them, but that is not the way of freedom. You don't need to fight anymore to be free, you Brave Ones. And if you feel the need to fight them, it is because you are releasing your need to fight.

So why would you dedicate your focus and energy to fighting? You can do it if you so choose, and there will be intense battles, for energies will immediately respond to your consciousness. Wouldn't you rather have those energies support your imagination and heartfelt choices and dreams?

You have all the tools you need in You, with your awareness, compassion, safe space and imagination, etc. And believe me if you will, the sense of insecurity that prevails in mass consciousness is a marker that the wound of Adam is rising to the surface and beginning to be released.

I am not speaking of being optimistic, for that would mean to be just traversing to the other end of the paradoxes. It is rather about allowing you to feel both edges. By not fighting, you stop catapulting you back to the other end and repeating your experience.

Are memories making you feel enslaved? It is because you are beginning to be free!

You are dearly loved,

I Am Isis.
